THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS THROWN AWAY BY THE FARMERS

The stock food factories have taken thousands of dollars out of the pockets of the farmer by charging a big price for their goods. Any farmer can make his own stock food for three cents a pound which he pays from seven to fifteen cents for. Mr. Pfennig, our graduate pharmacist and chemist, is familiar with the composition of stock foods and stock remedies. One dollar buys all the drugs ground and mixed ready to use to make one hundred pounds of stock food. Mix these drugs with oil cake or ground feed and you have the very best stock food for 3 cents a pound. We will gladly tell you how to save five or six dollars a hundred on stock food. Come in and have a talk with Mr. Pfennig on these matters and save half your money. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

DIRECTORS OF COMMERCIAL BASEBALL LEAGUE WILL HOLD MEETING.

TROLLEY LEAGUE MATTER

Is Hanging Fire Because of Failure of Belvidere Manager To Appear At Meeting.—Practice Shoot of Gun Club Yesterday.
(By Bert Leroy Evans.)

The annual meeting of the Commercial Baseball league of Janesville, long awaited will take place next week at the Y. M. C. A. building when the members of the board of directors will get together to talk over the plans for the season of 1911. For various reasons it has been impossible to get together all those that were interested in the league, but the time is now approaching when it is urgent that some arrangements should be made for the season. The league is permanently established in the city, has organized and holds the lease of Athletic Park for two years more and much interest is manifested in the action of the board of directors. New officers may be elected, but it has not been definitely decided what will be done. In any case some action with regard to starting off the season as soon as possible will undoubtedly be taken.

Extensive repairs are being made at the ball grounds and further repair and improvement work is contemplated. The top of the grandstand was covered last year with loose boards. These have been made solid and the roof waterproofed. Boards have been added to the stability of the rear and sides and better protection against stray balls striking those seated in the grandstand is now afforded, the old wire netting having been replaced with new.

If possible the league will go farther in fixing up the grounds. The plan, though it has not been passed upon by the board of directors and may fall through, is to "skin" the entire playing ground. This may occasion some additional expense but the soil taken from the diamond and grounds will be used to fill in the pond on one side of the field after it has been drained and will give a larger playing space and save some slight expense occasioned by paying for balls lost in the pond.

City Team.
Plans for the proposed Trolley League in which the Janesville team was to be included, are hanging fire for the time being, owing to the somewhat recalcitrant attitude taken by the manager of the Belvidere team toward entering the combine. Belvidere had originally intended to play independent ball, but the promoters were induced to consider coming into the league. However, when the representatives of the other cities it was proposed to include in the league met in Rockford recently to complete the organization, the Belvidere manager was conspicuous for his absence. In case the Trolley league plans fall through, Janesville will be at least assured of a strong independent team. Walter Brown, who has been promoting the proposition has his plans advanced too far just now for him to withdraw and has signed up his players for the season. A regular practice game will be held at the Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting, at which all of the men who will play with the Janesville nine this season will be on hand. The opening game will be an exhibition contest with the Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league to be played a week from Sunday.

Rock River Valley League.
Five high schools in nearby cities and towns are included in the organization known as the Rock River Valley high school baseball league, the opening game of which was played today at Palmyra, between Palmyra and Milton. Milton last year was the champion of the league, cleaning up not only the league games but nearly everything in sight. They have a strong team in the field this year, but a determined effort will be made to prevent them from coping all the honors this year. A schedule of games has been arranged, but owing to the fact that the last date is after the closing of school in some places, there is a likelihood of a change in some of the dates. The schedule is as follows:
April 21—Milton at Palmyra.
April 28—Whitewater at Milton.
April 29—Milton at Stoughton.
May 6—Stoughton at Edgerton.
Whitewater at Palmyra.
May 12—Stoughton at Milton.
May 13—Palmyra at Whitewater.
Edgerton at Stoughton.
May 19—Palmyra at Milton.

FAMOUS CONTRALTO FOND OF AMERICA

Schumann-Heink At Zenith of Her Career Admired America and American People.

The appearance Tuesday evening
April 25, of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the celebrated contralto, at the Myers Theatre, assisted by Mrs. Kathie

Schumann-Heink at the piano, will give the music loving public of this city, an opportunity to hear this great artist
at her best. She is now at the zenith of her career, a career declared by those who know, to be the greatest of any contralto that has ever lived. The reputation of Mme. Schumann-Heink for "delivering the goods" and for "getting over the footlights" are the factors for her ever increasing popularity.

Schumann-Heink has great admirers for America and the American people. She says "Perhaps my own nature is 'American', perhaps it is because I have found in America many kindred spirits that I have become so fond of the country, compelled to fight my own battles since before my 17th birthday, and buffeted about by adversity for a great many years, having before me but one goal and making mistakes, my servants, I have at last met with a fair measure of success and can look back upon my struggles with pleasure. Spending of American women, I like the part and speak of the woman of whom nobody speaks, the wife of the plow-man, who begins with nothing, but the ground below and the sky above him

and his help meet at his side.

"Look what the American woman
does for charity, for music in her work in musical clubs and for the betterment of the community she lives in."

"One fault with American parents is that they are too indulgent with their children. I believe in strict discipline, military discipline if a parent, not because on both my father's and mother's side there were several generations of soldiers and I was brought up to obey my parents strictly. I had wonderful parents, my father was an Austrian army officer and my mother was an Italian by birth and bred in an Italian convent. She spoke all languages, but with all her education she had the ideas of a good housewife. We never had servants. I learned cooking, scrubbing, washing,
ironing, everything so if it were necessary I could make my living as a farmer's wife."

In listening to Mme. Schumann-Heink Tuesday evening, one could not
will be conscious of the great hearted noble woman behind the art. The program she will give is varied and choice and cannot fail to afford pleasure and profit to every individual in the audience.

Madam Sherry.

It was George W. Lederer during his New York Casino regime who gave musical farce of musical comedy
most of the wrinkles that made the feminine choruses of the Lederer shows distinctive from the vocal feminine auxiliaries of the average broadway musical production contemporaneous with his times. It was Lederer who first introduced a whistling number, played by choristers, and also it was he who changed the fashion in popular chorus diction from just plain "chorus" girls to "show"
girls, and from those to girls in long skirts, and likewise it was Lederer
who first gave the country a dancing
cettee of girls labeled, "bonies",—
this in his production in the New York Theatre, New York, of "The Man in the Moon". Employing only blonde girls at one time, and brunettes at another and swinging the style from girls of generous physical amplitude to the feminine choruses, which he termed "bonies", were other successful wrinkles of the producer, in

"Madame Sherry", the manager has found a new quirk in his treatment of the handsome feminine pulchritude
that separately constitute the striking and dancing feminine ensembles of the production. The newest Lederer chorus girl invitation caught the fancy of New York, and will probably be a noted feature of the performance of "Madame Sherry" here during its engagement. To be novel in what is described in some of the advertisements announcing the forthcoming engagement as "A Talking Chorus". "Madame Sherry" will be presented at Myers Theatre Tuesday,
May 2, for one performance only.

Plays and Players.

John Mason has secured a distinct hit with "As a Man Thinks."

Maudie Adams' appearance in London in "Chatterbox" is again talked of.

"Excuse Me" is making a great hit in New York, where it is declared the funniest farce of the season.

Robert Arthur is organizing a Dilec-ta festival at the Coronet Theatre
about the time of the coronation.

"The Whip," which established a new record by running two seasons
at Drury Lane, is soon to be produced in Paris.

Next season Lulu Glaser will manage herself. She will appear in a new musical piece, the book of which will be by Stanislaus Stange.

There is talk that that Mildred Holland will present her own dramatization of "David Copperfield" when she closes in "The Triumph of an Empress."

Having been successfully tried on the road, "The Belle of New York"
condensed into a vaudeville sketch,
is now to be featured at the London Palladium.

Holena Frederick, who has been staging a tabloid version of "The Tales of Hoffmann" in vaudeville, is soon to appear in an one-act operaetta called "Gypsy Love."

Thomas Terrell, the English actor, starring in vaudeville, is the son of William Terrell, who was shot at the stage door of a London theatre some years ago.

Elizabeth Newbold, a young Austrian soprano, is the latest "boom."
She has the strong recommendation of Mabel, and she is to be heard at the London Hippodrome.

The first American production of "Arline of Harlowe" (Arline and Blue Beard), was recently given at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, with Gertrude Farrar in the cast.

William Gillette's revival of "Held by the Enemy" met with such success that it had to be repeated a week in New York. "Sherlock Holmes" it is said, is meeting with similar favor.

Molemud Sent is to figure as Glory Quincy in a vaudeville burlesque of
"The Christian," which Wentworth Crook, who made a fortune on the road with Hall Gable's play, will shortly produce.

Harry Kelly will not appear in support of Volusia Strutt, but will play
the one-act stand in "His Honor the Mayor" under the management of Al. Arons. Kelly formerly won considerable success in that play.

Welfer's new opera "Il Tossaro della Madonna" (The Jewels of the Madonna), a three-act work, has been acquired by Andrews Dippel, manager of the Chicago-Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, and will be presented next season.

Margaret Anglin has accepted for production next year a new drama by Camt Lesdaint, the son of the late Russian author and reformer,
Count Tolstol, outlined to Miss Anglin
the outline of the drama and she made a contract for it at once. The manuscript is to be delivered by the middle of July.

Frail Human Nature.

A man dreams of far-famed popularity when he sees a crowd of men standing about him, only to swiftly discover they were attracted by selfish interests.

Cheer Up.

Let us be of good cheer, remembering that the misfortunes hardest to bear are those which never come.— Oliver Wendell Holmes.

THE HARD COAL THAT'S ALL COAL

All that looks like coal is not always coal. Slate, rock and minerals are black—but they don't produce heat. Instead they reduce the heating power of the coal with which they're mixed, and they form big, bothersome clinkers. Scan-

3 MILLION ORANGES HERE

Another Big "SUNKIST" Sale Lasting All Next Week, Begins Monday, Apr. 24

The biggest lot of oranges that ever came to this city has just arrived—THREE MILLION of them. They arrived by special Fast Freight direct from the big "Sunkist" fruit groves of California. They are the "Sunkist" brand, famed for their delicious flavor and health-giving properties. Each local fruit dealer is laying in a liberal supply of "Sunkists" and on next Monday morning all dealers will put on a Special "Sunkist" Orange Sale,
lasting throughout the week.

California's Finest Oranges

"Sunkists" are California's most luscious oranges—
the choicest of each of 5,000 California Orange Farmers. They pack all their perfect oranges under the one name, "Sunkist," and ship them by special fast freight the day they are picked.

The "Sunkist" is a tree-ripened orange,
seedless and fibreless—never pithy—every
"Sunkist" is firm, solid and sound.

It is picked by a gloved hand. No orange that falls to the ground or becomes bruised or damaged
in any way, ever bears the "Sunkist" name.

How to Serve Them

Oranges are the most appetizing and nourishing food you can serve—at breakfast—in the sick-room—between meals—in salads, ices, sherbets and puddings.

There is no limit to the number of excellent dishes of which
"Sunkist" oranges form the basis.

Buy a box of "Sunkist" oranges and your fruit dealer will make you a special price. You will find no trouble in keeping them as long as you want to, because "Sunkists" reach you in excellent condition.

Physicians Advise Them

Leading physicians say that to counteract the effect of meat and other heavy foods we eat, one should eat oranges liberally. It is a universally known fact that orange juice is an excellent food for the brain cells and a tonic for run down nerves. No better laxative than sound, ripe "Sunkist" oranges can be found.

Cost No More Than Common Oranges

"Sunkist" oranges are cheapest to buy because they are thin-skinned, fibreless and seedless. They are nearly all food and no waste. You lose money if you buy pithy, seedy, thick-skinned oranges.

Free Premiums for "Sunkist" Wrappers

The "Sunkist" orange always comes in a "Sunkist" tissue paper wrapper that protects the oranges and retains all their tree ripened flavor. This name on the wrapper means you are buying, at a reasonable price, the finest orange of all.

"Sunkist" wrappers should be kept and sent to us to secure, free,
a set of genuine Rogers Orange Spoons, Dessert Spoons and Fruit Knives. The patterns are new 1911 styles, designed exclusively for us. They are as attractive and stylish as money can buy. All are Rogers quality, standard A-No. 1 plate and are fully guaranteed by the makers, Wm. Rogers & Sons. No advertising appears on any of our premiums.

Read on the right the description of these valuable premiums and how to get them.

"Sunkist" Lemons

The better grade of lemons are now packed in "Sunkist" wrappers. By calling for "Sunkist" lemons, you avoid the kind that are thick-skinned, pithy and insipid.
"Sunkist" lemons contain 50 per cent more juice than any other lemons. "Sunkist" lemon wrappers are accepted by our premium department.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Twilight club did a wise thing in getting two representatives of the activities of the modern woman to come, and address the people of Janesville. Many small wife have appeared to the readers of their hearts of late in sarcastic allusion to some phases of the modern woman's ideas and claims; but when allowance has been made for the excesses of the British satirists, and the Carrie Nation order of reformers, and also for the utopian hopes of the woman's suffrage movement in our own country, there remains a mass of sane activities and high ideals connected with the work of the modern woman that will furnish grounds for congratulation.

Some of us can remember a few years ago when the universities were a monopoly of the male intellect, and their doors were closed to woman because it was affirmed that her intellect was of an inferior order. This superstition has had a rude shock of late as in the fascinating life story of Madame Curie the discoverer of radium. We have regarded the mentality of woman as suited only to the interests of home and the affections and thought she was incapable of the severely logical and accurate observation necessary to the pursuit of science. But here is a little woman whose clear, penetrating, scientific intellect has made her one of the first physicists of the age. She is a thrifty, careful and wise mother, too. Left a widow by a man and husband, she has carried on the duties of guardian, companion and genuine mother to her two little daughters. All this shows that there is no inconsistency in the educated and gifted woman pursuing a profession or practicing an artistic gift, and yet continuing to discharge the duties of a wife and mother.

We should guard, however, against the idea that a case like Madame Curie's is an ordinary one and that every woman could practice two professions. Because she is in every respect a genius of a high scientific order. She conducts her laboratory experiments, and teaches in the University of the Sorbonne in Paris. She is a fine cook and housekeeper, an exemplary mother and a devoted wife, her marriage having been one of mutual ideas and sympathies for learning and chemistry.

The same might be said of a celebrated musical artist like Madame Schumann-Heink, whose professional work, as is well known, is not inconsistent with her domestic virtues and joys.

Other names of very remarkable women could be cited to show that the position and work and consequent influence of woman, both on the home and society, must be regarded in modern times from an entirely new point of view. Two things must be kept constantly in mind if we are to understand the modern woman and her place in the home and society, and also her claims for civic and even political equality with man.

The first is that woman has a right to the possession of her own soul—she is a person per se. She has a right to the exercise of her own gifts

If she so decides. Accordingly, she may not be criticised if she elects to remain single and pursue her artistic business, or professional career any more than a man would be criticised for so doing. And, even if married, she may elect, at her own discretion, to lead a semi-public life if that use of her gifts does not impair her duties as wife and mother.

On the other hand the most earnest advocates of woman's mental and civic freedom do not dream of her deserting the profession of wife and mother—for this surely is a profession, and the noblest. Her functions in the home and as the nurse and trainer of children, as the keeper and solace of the home must ever be supreme. For the same, normal and happy woman wifehood and motherhood is the ideal. No school of thinkers, no party of political reform, no authorities of any sort contemplate any other sphere ever interfering with or rivaling in attraction or importance the home and the cradle.

The great problem, then, is to discover what new methods of civic and political action will help woman to be the best kind of a wife, mother and homemaker. We cannot change any racial customs in the interests of exceptional geniuses, either men or women; we can legislate only for the average man and woman. It does not seem absurd to say, then, that the first efforts for the improvement of woman's position should be along educational lines. All girls should be educated in our common schools for the duties and functions of wifehood, motherhood and the making of the right kind of home. And next to this is perhaps the order of legal and political changes that would help the working woman.

No one can afford to ignore the statistics presented by Miss Mary McDowell at the Twilight club banquet above referred to, that there were five million working women in America. The position of these is not a matter of sentiment or false charity; it is plainly an economic and moral one. Our laws and customs must be ordered to meet the economic and moral conditions created by the factory and trade relations of such women.

It would seem, then, that the present position of this great "human question," as Miss McDowell called it, demands of all of us the open mind, the sympathetic heart, the unprejudiced reception of facts so that a happy solution may be presented in a critical case. On the one hand, woman as the maker of the home, the happy mother of children and the moral guardian of youth, on the other the political and legal safeguards of her rights as a person to live her own life free from artificial, legal and immoral conditions, which is the prerogative of Christian freedom, and the best test of a high order of civilization.

Go west, young man, as Greeley said, and carve out wealth and fame; if you're equipped with heart and head, you'll surely win the game. If you are brave and staunch and true, ambition in your breast, all things will surely come to you; so, then, young man, go west. Go east, young man, and win renown, the field's beyond compare; the toll in the field or town may gain his laurels there. The youth who'd take a higher way than that of eld or bent will rise to noble heights some day; so, then, young man, go east. Go south, young man, to virgin field, and build yourself a home, returning only on your shield, as did the youth of Rome. Go to your work with willing hands and calm and cheerful mouth, and fortune waits for your commands; go south, good youth, go south! Go north—what boots it where you went? All regions are the same; the earnest, honest soul, my friend, will win an honored name. Each country has its rich reward and gladly brings it forth for him who labors well and hard—go east, or west, or north!

Happily, there is one beverage, says Table Talk, that children love dearly that may be given them without question—cocoa. It is so rich in nourishment, it made as it should be, with milk, that it ranks as a food rather than a drink, and is particularly useful in nourishing a child who dislikes milk by itself.

GYPSY CAMP WAS RAIDED AT DAWN BY ARMED POSSE

SHERIFF RANSOM AND CHIEF AP. PLEBY SEARCHING FOR KIDNAPPED CHICAGO GIRL.

ONE WAGON IS MISSING

But Six Vans Found in Camp and Seventh is Thought to Be One Containing Child.

Following a dispatch from the police authorities at Chicago, received last night, Sheriff Ransom and Chief of Police Appleby with a squad
of the city police and three deputies,
this morning at four o'clock made a raid on a gypsy camp about three miles southeast of the city in search of Elsie Paroubek, the five year old girl kidnapped from her home in Chicago on April 8.

The daybreak search of the camp
revealed no trace of the missing girl,
and the police and the sheriff are now
scouring the country for a lone wagon belonging to the gypsy outfit which
from all that can be learned is the one containing the child.

The kidnapped girl is the child of a poor family in Chicago and was missed from her home in that city on the eighth of this month. All of the clues obtainable by the police and sheriff in that city points to the fact that she was carried away by a band
of gypsies on or about that date.

The wife received here last night
stated that a caravan of seven wagons was enroute through Wisconsin and that they were due to reach here some time last evening. It also said that in all probabilities the seventh wagon
would linger on the outskirts and not camp with the others.

Sheriff Ransom and Chief Appleby
immediately took steps to ascertain the location of the band of gypsies
and when this was done by phoning
to different farms about the county,
a guard was sent to watch them during the night.

At four o'clock this morning, the two automobiles, loaded with police and deputy sheriffs under the direction of Sheriff Ransom and Chief Appleby
left the city for the camp which was situated about one mile south of the Emmerich road, near the intersection of the Rock road, and three other deputies.

It was just getting light as the two machines drew near the camp. The front machine proceeded to the south end of the outlet while the other arrived at the end nearest town. At the command of the officers the sleeping gypsies roused themselves and the man who seemed to be the boss
of the gang was accused to be the direct accusation of having concealed
the child in one of the wagons.

Despite his protestations of innocence the men advanced upon the tents and wagons and the search was gone through without opposition on the part of the half-wake men and women. Plenty of children were in evidence but none that answered to the description of the missing Elsie Paroubek.

When the party returned to the city
this morning it was learned that the Chicago authorities had been making constant inquiries over the phone and by telegraph as to the progress of the search. They were impatient in their expressions of confidence in the fact that the guilty ones were near this city and were the ones whose outfit was being gone through.

The evidence which most strongly held up the reports was that offered by a message received by the police late in the evening from Belvidere telling of the passage of the band
through that city. The six wagons with the "trailer" had gone through there Friday and one of the women stopped at a house to beg for food.

She was accompanied by a little girl about five years old with light hair and answering the description in every detail of the Paroubek girl.
The lady at whose house she stopped accused the gypsy women of stealing the girl and the latter promptly withdrew the child and ran from the house.

From that and from the inquiries
about the roads leading in all directions from the site of the night camp,
made this morning later, it is certain that one of the risks supposedly containing the child did not stop with the rest but proceeded and skirted Janesville, being now bound north in an attempt to cover all traces in order to get out of the way of the telegraph
dispatches.

It is also a striking fact that the band whose camp was searched early this morning did not stop the usual time here but left town after watering their horses and resting but a few minutes.

Working on this theory, that the missing seventh wagon containing the little Elsie Paroubek has circled the city and is going north, there will be no letup in the search and as far as possible every means will be taken to stop the abductors before another day.

We wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted in and extended their sympathy in our recent bereavement.

TALKED OF STREETS AND IMPROVEMENTS

Interesting Evening at the Commercial Club's Last Supper for the Present Season.

That Janesville's common council might, if they desired, so change the present system of street assessments for improvements and the building of new streets, to an arrangement whereby the city pay the bulk of the improvement and take from the ward or general fund and the owners of property adjacent but a small proportion of the total cost, was within the legal limitations of the present charter,
was the statement of Attorney
M. O. Mount at the meeting of the Commercial club last evening.

The club held its regular monthly meeting at the Myers hotel and following the supper took up the subject of street conditions and what might be done to improve them. It proved to be a most interesting subject and the speakers of the evening were well prepared for the question.

M. O. Mount, who had been asked to speak upon the legal aspect of a possible change in the method of assessment of the present improvement system, stated that it might be changed under the law. This is a subject that is being much discussed and Mr. Mount's statement that it could be changed by the council puts a new aspect on the matter. The speaker, however, said that he did not approve of such a change, as he believed it would work a hardship on those who have already paid for their street improvements.

V. P. Richardson stated that he was largely responsible for the present system of street assessments when he was mayor and that he thought any change in the present method would work a decided hardship on those who had paid. Several of the speakers on this subject thought it ought not to be agitated as it would unsettle
matters, financially, considerably.

P. L. Clemons spoke on the subject of having the streets alled instead of using the sprinkling wagon, on the main street. He explained the great benefits from this method as used in Madison, where the city does the street sprinkling and since installing the oil system they have done away with several of their wagons and are doing the work cheaper with the oil than with the water method.

H. H. Biles talked of the Spill Log drag and the possibility of its use on the outlying city streets where conditions are exceptionally bad. The use of this drag would aid materially in the work of cleaning up the streets.
It was decided that the club purchase a drag to be used on the streets for experimental purposes. The Mayor is to be notified of the club's intentions
and it is expected that he will heartily endorse the experiment.

George P. Kimball spoke on the ordinance relative to street excavations and explained that they were in effect
but not enforced strictly, when it came to replacing the dirt and surface dressing.

The club also named a committee consisting of V. P. Richardson, George Stuehland and George S. Parker to confer with the Mayor and street commissioners of the city to inform them
of the views of the club on this subject.

John Goller spoke on the location of the sign which was placed by the Industrial and Commercial club near the railway tracks objecting to its location, stating that he did not think it gave enough display to the city. The discussion which followed showed that the opinion of the majority of the members was favorable to the sign and its present location.

This being the last meeting of the year a special committee was named consisting of P. J. Mount, George S.
McKee, H. H. Biles, and George S.
Parker to arrange for an outing for the club at some convenient resort
that can be reached by auto.

TERCENTENARY OF THE ENGLISH BIBLE

A leading public event of both Britain and America is the celebration of the Tercentenary of the English Bible. This has been celebrated already in England both by the speech of Mr. Asquith, the British prime minister, and by the letter of our President sent in congratulation
to the Sister English speaking people.
It is to be celebrated also in America
next Sunday, April 23rd, and the occasion will be marked by special dis-

PASS CANADA PACT BY DECISIVE VOTE

RECIPROCITY MEASURE GOES THROUGH: HOUSE DESPITE REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION.

MANY AMENDMENTS OFFERED

Bill, Which Now Goes to Senate, Gets Almost Solid Support of the Democrats—Final Roll Was 264 to 89.

Washington, April 22.—By the decisive vote of 264 to 89 the house of representatives passed the Canadian reciprocity tariff measure, marking the close of a six-days' fight.

Ten of the opposing votes were cast by the Democrats and the other 79 by Republicans. A majority of the Republicans in the house voted against the measure, and the fears of President Taft were realized, namely, that the reciprocity measure would go through by Democratic votes alone. At the last minute the president summoned a group of Republican opponents of reciprocity to the White House and made a personal appeal to them, but without avail.

The bill now goes to the senate, where strenuous efforts are to be made, through amendments and otherwise, to defeat it. Announcements that such was the plan of opposing senators were made during the fight in the house.

Most startling in their nature were the explanations given by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee, of plans that had been adopted by grant trusts, monopolies and interests to defeat the reciprocity bill. That fight is still on and will have to be met in the senate.

Mr. Underwood, in his closing address, charged that the American Protective Tariff league, the steel and lumber trusts had waged a systematic campaign against the bill, which included the sending of misleading telegrams to members of the house and the closing down of steel mills, throwing thousands of workmen out of employment, to influence congressmen and senators.

All Amendments Defeated.

McCall of Massachusetts also defended the bill in a lengthy address, and Daltzell made the final attack upon it. Then came a flood of amendments, fifty or more, all aimed against the meat, lumber and print paper schedules of the pact. Spirited debate followed on each amendment, but all were voted down.

The record vote came on final passage of the bill, nearly everyone insisting on it. Ten Democrats voted against the tariff pact and 79 Republicans. This was a majority of the Republicans voting. Among the opponents of the bill were nearly all the progressive Republicans of the house.

Provisions of Bill.

The reciprocity bill seeks to put into effect the formal agreement reached between President Taft and members of the Canadian cabinet for a reduction of tariff rates on many articles and free trade in many others across the Canadian border. Added to it by the Democratic leaders is a section which "authorizes and requests" President Taft to make further efforts to secure still further trade relations with Canada in the form of additional reciprocal relations.

The passage of the bill marked the close of a fight that had raged in the house for six days. During that time the safety of the measure was at no time threatened.

CHARGE CROWD WITH BAYONETS

Iowa Troops at Muscatine Are Called Out by Sheriff.

Muscatine, Ia., April 22.—The collecting of a crowd of several thousand persons around the button plant of the Automatic button factory caused Sheriff Vannatta to call out Company C, the local company of the Fifty-fourth regiment, Iowa National Guard.

As the company approached the factory the soldiers were greeted with howls from the mob. Captain Lange called upon the crowd to disperse and the soldiers with fixed bayonets started for the crowd, which scattered. Then the troops chased them through the streets.

Sheriff Vannatta does not anticipate any further trouble. This call for the militia was the result of the eight weeks of strife because of the strike of 2,000 button workers in the button factory of Muscatine.

BILLIARDS INVADERS HAVANA.

Mexican Disease Breaks Out Among Hotel Guests, Menaces City.

Havana, April 22.—An epidemic of Mexican smallpox menaces Havana. The first case developed at the Hotel Inglaterra and the disease was contracted by other guests before the authorities were aware of its presence. The hotel is now a veritable hospital. The building has been thoroughly disinfected and all the guests are either undergoing treatment or are under observation. All the Americans have been vaccinated.

The disease is believed to have been brought here from Yucatan, where it is reported that yellow fever has reappeared.

Cashier Short, Is Forced to Resign.

Peoria, Ill., April 22.—G. F. Hillman, cashier of the First National bank of Tremont, Ill., was forced to resign upon the appearance of a national bank examiner, who found him technically short about $5,000. Hillman made good the amount immediately. The shortage was due to some worthless notes he had accepted.

FAMOUS DIPLOMAT TO RETURN TO UNITED STATES.
Dr. Wu Ting-fang, his wife and family.

Washington.—Social circles in this city were much rejoiced by the report of the possibility of Dr. Wu Ting-fang's return to the United States. Dr. Wu, who returned from China, during his two previous terms he was a source of unending amusement and enjoyment. His innumerable questions, his witty observations and his general interest in things and theories made his conversations desirable at all gatherings. The return of Dr. Wu is especially desired by those who think the span of human life is being lengthened. The genial but curious minister declared when leaving that he firmly expected to attain the age of 200.

As a propounder of interrogations Dr. Wu holds all records here. He was surpassed temporarily by Li Hung Chang, but the latter's presence continued but a few days. During his first term Dr. Wu attained a record as a speechmaker. He delivered 823 platform addresses.

It was the delight of Dr. Wu to entertain society by doing some new, unexpected or out-of-the-way thing. His attendance upon spiritualistic seances created a sensation. His frank discussion of woman's suffrage and kindred topics edified and amused. His ambition to become an aviator was regarded as unique in an Oriental.

"You Americans are very interesting and I regret leaving you," were the parting words of Dr. Wu when taking a train on his way home.

Their Mistake.

Some folks get to thinking in sums of figures, and seemingly forget the bright and shady places peopled by men and women with their joys and sorrows, for the very reason that they cannot set such trivial things down in their ledgers.

To Clean Gloves.

A mixture of finely powdered fuller's earth and alum is excellent for cleaning white gloves. It should be rubbed in well, then brushed off, and the gloves sprinkled with dry bran and whitened.

Elevated Interests.

"Why do you find so much fault with that big town? It claims to pay much attention to higher things." "That's just the trouble; too many skyscrapers and not enough street sweepers."

Truth and Error.

Error would have been banished ages ago but for the atom of truth which is hidden somewhere in it to keep it alive and let it find a place in certain minds as the geriatric article.

Blood Humors

It is important that you should now rid your blood of those impure, poisonous, effete matters that have accumulated in it during the winter. The secret of the unequalled and really wonderful success of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

as a remedy for Blood Humors is the fact that it combines, not simply sarsaparilla, but the utmost remedial values of more than twenty ingredients—Roots, Barks and Herbs,—known to have extraordinary efficacy in purifying the blood and building up the whole system. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla, no "just as good" medicine. Get Hood's today, in liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.

In the Spring Time All Nature Takes a New Lease Of Life

Every healthy man and woman enjoys life to the fullest when the trees begin to bud, when all the universe awakens to the beauty of the coming season.

Yet many are suffering, are merely living from day to day without the pleasures that would be theirs if they had perfect health. Many are hoping against hope for relief without really trying to get better, many are just feeling poorly, many lack ambition for everything and anything, simply because there is a drain on their vitality somewhere and they do not know where.

Some have taken medicines, and drugs and poisons, others have gone to Doctors for pills, etc., all of which treat symptoms, but get no relief.

And There Is No Wonder They Do Not Get Well

The way to get well, the way to health and happiness is to get at the cause of the disease and remove it. No one will dispute these facts. There is plenty of convincing evidence on every side of you.

The wonderful Science of Chiropractic, a science of truths, points the way to perfect health, and it is the only Science that goes straight at the Cause of the Disease. It is the only science that has a record of 98% of the patients getting well. Hundreds in Rock County who have come to us have gotten well, and their sickness does not return, because the CAUSE of the sickness has been removed.

The Science of Chiropractic is so simple in its application that every one can understand it. That is why everyone has faith in it. That is why so many are coming to us, when all other methods have failed.

Read these convincing records. You, too, can be made well if you suffer from sickness of any kind. Come and see us at once. Nothing is gained by delay, and your condition constantly becomes worse.

RAYMOND PUDDICOMBE

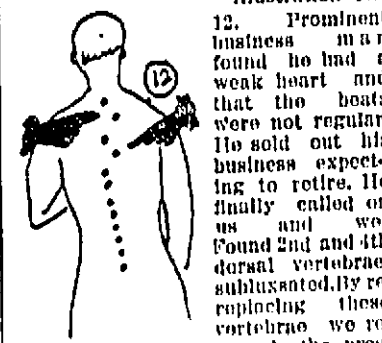

Illustration No. 12. Prominent business man found he had a weak heart and that the beats were not regular. He sold out his business expecting to retire. He finally called on us and we found 2nd and 4th dorsal vertebrae subluxated. By replacing these vertebrae we removed the pressure from heart nerves which restored him to normal, and he is now well. This man went back into active business.

We have a great many cases of weak heart, and all get well by taking Chiropractic Adjustments.

BILLIOUSNESS, ENLARGED LIVER AND MALARIA.

Illustration No. 13. A successful plumber had enlargement of the liver from a contracted fever and malaria. Several cramps were always felt. When examined by the Chiropractor the cause of the disease was immediately located. This case was cured by Chiropractic adjustments.

Illustration No. 14. These vertebrae were adjusted to normal position and the patient regained her sight and became well.

Causes of eye diseases of various kinds are brought to us. All have been made well when adjustments were taken. We find that pressure on the nerves leading to different parts of the eye causes the different diseases; so the subluxation is not always at the same place in the spine.

Illustration No. 11. A nationally known man suffered with dyspepsia and indigestion for many years. Adjusted the vertebrae of the spine at 5th, 6th and 7th dorsal vertebrae, restoring the nervous energy to the stomach, and he can now eat any kind of food without trouble. Hundreds of our cases are of this nature. All get entirely well.

Illustration No. 10. Lady blind most of time for 6 years; tumor on one side of eye-balls. The vertebrae of the first and second cervical vertebrae were shutting off the nerves leading to eyes. She suffered in and at a smaller cost than you would pay to a doctor, without getting permanent relief.

CONSUMPTION AND BRONCHIAL TROUBLE.

Illustration No. 9. Consumption in a young lady. The second and third dorsal vertebrae were found in a lateral subluxated condition, throwing a pressure on the nerves that ran to the lungs, causing congestion of the lungs which threw the patient into consumption. By replacing the vertebrae and removing the pressure from these nerves it gives nature a chance to restore perfect health.

We have had a large per cent of these cases, and all are now well. Consumption is not contagious, as very many people associate with these cases daily, and yet are no more liable to contract this disease than men engaged in other callings.

Bronchitis is started with a cold or catarrhal condition of the head, the discharge therefrom running down the bronchial tubes which irritates the nerves and causing contraction of the muscles and producing a subluxation of the first and second dorsal vertebrae. The result is Bronchitis and Consumption. By replacing these dorsal vertebrae we restore the natural condition and the disease disappears immediately. The superiority of the Chiropractic science.

Illustration No. 8. A case of a lady with a bad cough and bronchitis caused by a subluxation of the 6th cervical vertebra pressing the nerves running to the bronchial tubes and causing severe coughing spells. This was readily overcome by adjusting the vertebra to normal position. Similar cases are of frequent occurrence and all people get well after taking Chiropractic Adjustments who were affected by the same trouble.

Illustration Number seven shows the 7th cervical vertebra of the neck out of place. A case in point is that of a man who had paralysis on one side, and the heart was weak, caused by the dislocated vertebra pressing on the nerves leading to the brain and shutting off the nervous energy. By adjusting the vertebra, the normal condition was restored and the man got well.

We have a great many of these cases, and 98 per cent get well.

Illustration No. 2 shows the first cervical vertebra of the neck out of place. This will cause Neuralgia in the head. A woman who had suffered for many years was in this condition. She came to us and we found that the subluxation was pinching the nerves and cutting off the nervous impulses, which is life. Several Adjustments got it back in place and the lady was never troubled since with Neuralgia. A great many of these cases come to us. The subluxation is not always in the same place and the neuralgia is in the different parts of the body.

Heart to Heart Talks.

DIVINE DISCONTENT.

Yesterday I heard a sermon against discontent.

I have written of the blessings of contentment, and I am not desirous to take any of it back. But—

There is a discontent that is different.

It is the discontent that is satisfied only with the best, a wholesome longing for that which is excellent.

If the almighty power that sprinkled space with the stars had been content with anything less than earth there had been but clouds and darkness here.

If primitive man had been content with his crude stone ax there had been no civilization, science, literature, art.

If Newton had been content to see the apple fall without knowing why the law of gravity might yet be undiscovered.

If Lincoln had been content with his Salem grocery store the history of Illinois and of the nation would be different.

There is a divine discontent.

It must be so, because man is built that way.

Man is finer, more sensitive, than his environment, and friction with the rougher elements hurts him.

He is greater than his dwelling.

He is larger than his body and cannot be kept within it. He is bigger than his grave and revolts at it.

He is discontented when that which is highest and best in him is assaulted.

He is wounded when injustice is done his fellows. He wants to right wrongs. He wants to help conditions.

It is so.

Therefore his discontent.

Therefore the godlikeness of his discontent—the discontent that wants to do better and be better.

On the one hand—

There is a discontent that is far from divine, the discontent that vents itself in faultfinding and in fretfulness rather than in righteous desire for betterment.

But—

The divine impulse of discontent that has for its guidance the right and clear intent—why, that discontent has changed this earth from merely dirt to half a paradise, changed man from a scowling brute to half an angel.

Fully Explained.

"What is Boston coffee?" asked the customer at the lunch counter.

"It's the kind you put the cream in first," answered the waiter girl.

"But why is it called Boston coffee?"

"Because the cream is put in first."

"Yes, I know, but when a man orders Boston coffee why do you put the cream in first? That's the question."

"Because he orders Boston coffee."

"Anything else you wish to know, sir?"

KATHERINE KAEDRED
American Actress Making Success in London.

London, England.—Katherine Kaedred, an American actress, is appearing in London as the Vampire woman in Porter Emerson Brown's play, "The Vampire." One of the London reviewers in contributing his criticism of the play, was evidently bitter towards American women. Among other things, he said: "Miss Kaedred as the Vampire woman gives us a clear-cut cameo of the average American woman."

Miss Kaedred, after reading the criticism, took exception to the reflection on American women, and addressed a letter to the editor of the paper. She called attention to the play as having been suggested by Rudyard Kipling's poem, "The Vampire," that Mr. Kipling was a British subject, and that Bourne Jones, whose celebrated painting of "The Vampire" has an international reputation, is a native born Englishman; that the character she played could in no way be considered an American woman, other than that the scenes of the play were laid in America; that this type existed in England, in France, or in any other country.

The consequence of Miss Kaedred taking up the gauge of battle in defense of American women, has aroused no little newspaper comment.

The opaque center of artificial ice, which a French physician has pointed out, is due to freezing from the outside, the impurities, including bacteria, being crowded into the last portion to solidify.

NEW MODEL AWNINGS

The Best Awnings Ever Put Up.

Suitable for Residences, Flats, Office Buildings, Factories and Institutions of all kinds

The attention of those using awnings is called to what is acknowledged by many architects, builders and those in charge of larger buildings, the greatest improvement in applying awnings to residences or business blocks ever invented. Its simplicity of operation and absence of parts liable to get out of order, and the fact that any one with ordinary tools can put them up, are points that will recommend it to anyone who has had any experience with the old style awning.

They do not stick or jam and can be raised or lowered without any trouble or inconvenience to the operator.

They are especially recommended because of the ease and rapidity with which they can be taken down and the small amount of room required to store them when not in season.

Should the necessity arise the coverings can be replaced at one-third the expense of the old style awnings.

Owing to its construction the material is at all times tightly stretched; no creases or folds can form and collect soot.

Its superiority over any style of awning is that they do not disfigure or detract from the appearance of any building, leaving the entire window free when up; they shut out no light from the room, even when down, and being open on all sides, admit fresh air, which is very essential.

The fact that they are storm proof is in their favor, for no wind no matter how strong, can disarrange or destroy them even when down, no necessity of rushing to the window and raising them every time a storm occurs. Being noiseless at all times even if let down at night, they will cause no annoyance or worry in case of sudden storm or winds. All iron parts are galvanized, which makes them perfectly rust-proof.

This is the awning for you and when you're ready just drop us a line and we'll have our representative call and demonstrate to you we have the cheapest awning and the best on the market today. Or when you call at the store we'll show you.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THE cycle of our circle had recently bought himself a horse. The cycle admits that he is not so good a judge of horses as he is—or thinks he is—of men, and as the purchase represented the fulfillment of a lifelong cherished and lifelong denied ambition, the cycle was anxious, delightedly, humanly, just-like-the-rest-of-us anxious to see how his horse would turn out.

She went beautifully for two or three days.

We were all daily called upon to admire her fine points, her small head and feet, her glossy coat, her broad chest, her excellent knee action.

The cycle was happy. So happy that he almost forgot he was a cycle. So happy that he even forgave when Molly passed over the fine points and said she'd rather have a horse with less knee action and more of a mane and tail.

And then one morning the beloved animal was not taken for her daily trot.

The cycle came back from the stable thoroughly remembering his character of cycle.

"The horse is gone bad," he explained. "Her front legs are all stiff. The stable people don't seem to know what's the matter. They say she'll probably be all right in a few days, but I can't get anything real definite out of them. All they'll do is to say at her legs and look wise. I'll bet the animal goes lame for good. Just my luck."

Of course we all promptly tried to cheer him up—even Molly graciously joined in the assurance that, of course, the horse would be better in a day or two.

And then the author's wife came in and heard the news.

"Well, now isn't that queer?" she gloated—yes, "gloated" is the proper word. "Do you know my father had a horse once that did just like that. She went splendidly for a day or two after he bought her, and then went stiff all of a sudden and was never good for anything again. The veterinary said she must have had something the matter with her foot in the first place, and that something must have been injected into her to make her go all right for a day or two. Father kept her for awhile and then sold her to a tin peddler for fifty dollars. And he had three hundred and fifty for that horse. Your horse makes me think of her a lot, too, in her knee action and the way her feet are shaped. Now isn't that funny?"

The lady-scholarly-knows-somewhat came in just about then and reinforced our assurance that the horse would surely be all right in a day or two, and that the case the author's wife had told about was different in a great many ways, but the cycle was beyond reach of optimism.

Sweet of the author's wife, wasn't it?

And of all her kind who always have a dismally suggestive story of a trouble quite similar to yours which ended most disastrously.

You fall and hurt your knee a bit and the doctor orders you to bed for a day or two, and they promptly remember that "Aunt Eliza, who fell very much the way you did, was in bed eighteen weeks and in dreadful pain most of the time."

Your maid acts strangely, and they promptly recall how "Mrs. S's maid did things just like that, and she turned out to be an ether fiend and set the house afire in one of her crazy spells."

You find—but why multiply examples? Everybody knows?

Everybody suffers from it at one time or another.

And everybody—fancy—has much the same opinion of it.

Development of the Baby

Often the irregular shape of the head of a child shortly after birth is a source of anxiety to the mother, but this seeming deformity will be corrected in a few days by a natural process. Due to a wise provision of nature, the bones of the head are not firmly cemented together at birth, and in consequence they often overlap in passing through the birth canal.

The lines of union of the bones of the head are called sutures and the triangular spot on the top of the head where four of the bones come together is designated as the "soft spot." The sutures close during the early months and the "soft spot" is usually closed at about the fifteenth month.

As soon as possible after birth the child should be weighed and for the first few months it should be weighed at least once a week. During the first few days there is generally some loss in weight but this is regained by the tenth day or at the end of two weeks.

For the remaining part of the first and second month the average gain is one ounce a day and for the third and fourth month about five ounces a week—it should have doubled its weight at five months. For the sixth and seventh months the gain is from 1/2 to 3/4 ounce daily and for the remainder of the year about one pound a month. After weighing a child with its clothes on, always weigh the clothes separately and deduct to get the correct weight. Any loss in weight or any stationary weight for any length of time shows that the child is not receiving enough of the right kind of nourishment. In such a case a physician should be consulted for it taken in this simple measure may remedy this fault, which later, if allowed to go on, may bring about serious consequences, due to the result of malnutrition. At times in these cases a "wet nurse" has to be employed, or artificial feeding partial or entire, must be resorted to.

At birth the height of the child is about twenty inches. During the first year it grows in length a little more than eight inches—the second year three to four inches, and after that the average is about two inches a year.

At the end of the first year the child should have six teeth—it may have twelve. The first teeth should be all through at the age of two or two and a half years. The teeth may give trouble on coming through or may appear almost unnoticed. At times gastric disturbances are present—the child does not sleep well and is irritable. Fever, present at this time, is generally not due to the teeth, but to the gastric disturbance. Herodotus plays a part in dentition—in some families the teeth appear early; in others late. Some come with difficulty; others with no trouble at all. When the teeth are coming and the gums appear swollen and are painful, often dipping the finger in cold water and rubbing them gives quick relief. At times rubbing the gums with a piece of ice placed in a clean linen cloth gives relief. If the finger is used it should be thoroughly washed first. There are twenty teeth in the first set. The washing of the mouth should be continued through infancy. After the teeth come they should be rubbed each morning with a soft cloth moistened with boracic solution; if any particles remain between them they should be removed by drawing silk floss between the teeth. Decay of the first teeth may cause indigestion and deformity of the permanent teeth—so they should be carefully looked after, and a dentist should be consulted if there is any suspicion of trouble.

The average child bears its weight on its feet about the ninth or tenth month; it usually stands about the twelfth month and walks between the thirteenth and fifteenth month. It should never be urged to walk or to use apparatus for teaching babies to walk should be used. When the muscles are strong enough it will walk.

At the end of the first year the child usually says "Pappa" and "Mamma," and at the end of the second year it combines words into sentences of two or three words. The first words are names of persons and the second of objects—verbs, adverbs, adjectives and personal pronouns come in order.

Occasionally the breast of an infant, of either sex, will become swollen with milk a few weeks after birth, which at times causes anxiety, but it really amounts to nothing. The breasts should never be massaged or bruised in any way. The swollen parts should be rubbed carefully with camellia oil, a cotton dressing applied, held in place with a smooth binder. When the binder is removed in four or five days the swelling will have disappeared.

Seems Like She Lost Time.

A Syracuse woman who thought she had spinal trouble asserts that she was cured by a vision that told her to get up and walk. It is strange that a plan so feasible had not occurred to her without any ghostly hint.

To Women Readers

Suggestions by the "Feature Editor" of the possibilities of an economical table may not be taken amiss. If anyone has a complaint that the recipes offered in the columns to be used in this content are too extravagant they have not made them to this department.

Still, however, there are so many economical dishes that can be made that the "Feature Editor" is prone to print the following list in place of the usual talk to the women readers. Upon the same amount of money expended one family can live and live well while another has little to show in the way of comfortable living. To set a good table attractively and economically is a gift, sometimes of inheritance and again one gained by observation, application and determination.

If housekeeping is a woman's chief profession and there is none other that is higher or finer, why should she not give to it the best that is in her? It is not an ignoble thing to make those about us comfortable and happy at the same time keeping within the limits of our incomes.

In many families it is the table expenses that run away with the money. While everything is much higher than a decade or even five years ago, we may as well accept conditions as they are and change our menus to conform to them. We all like chops and steaks, but to use them daily means a larger strain on our incomes than most of us can manage.

Here then are a few suggestive dishes that are comparatively inexpensive, nourishing and at the same time attractive when properly prepared.

Inexpensive Breakfast Dish.

Remove the contents from a small can of chopped beef and smooth out the pieces carefully. Put in a bowl of cold water and let stand over night. The next morning turn off the cold water and replace with warm water to cover. Simmer gently for about twenty minutes. Put into the frying pan two tablespoonfuls butter and a scant two tablespoonfuls flour. When blended, stir in with the steamed beef and gravy together with one hard-boiled egg chopped fine. Have ready some slices of carefully browned and buttered toast, arrange on a platter and turn the hot beef and gravy over it.

Calves Brains in Tempting but Inexpensive Ways.

Carefully prepared few can tell the difference between sweet brains and calves brains though the housewife will appreciate the fact that sweet brains cost about four times as much as the brains. In whichever way one elects to cook the brains the preliminary treatment is the same. Parboil fifteen minutes in water, to which has been added a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar. After this let them lie in cold water a few moments, then remove all membranes and dark streaks. They are now ready to be cooked in any way preferred.

The above recipes are good. Try them and see if they are not. As the time is short for the content days if you have any recipes that you wish published so you can use them send them in at once.

The four prizes are as follows:

First prize—Caloric Pileless Cooker.

Second prize—$5.00 in gold.

Third prize—$2.00.

Fourth prize—$2.00.

Any question relative to the contest should be addressed "Feature Editor, Gazette."

BASTILLE THAT MADE FRANCE FAMOUS.

April 22.—The Bastille, that famous old French fortress and prison, was started on its way to infamy by the laying of the first stone of the structure on April 22, 1356. It was built by order of Charles V. and was used for court, palace and dungeon, as the case required, up to its fall on July 15, 1789, the beginning of the French Revolution. The Bastille had four towers of four stories each and a basement which was fitted out with cells and secret passages. Charles VI. had the building enlarged in 1382 by the addition of four new towers. In 1413, in height, which changed it from a square to an oblong. To increase its strength the Bastille was surrounded by a ditch 25 feet deep and 120 feet wide. On account of its prominence in political affairs it was the first object of attack at the outbreak of the Revolution. On July 15, 1789, the populace fell on the garrison and captured the building, and then proceeded to tear it down. The event made such a hit that the fall of the Bastille is now celebrated as a national holiday in France.

The KITCHEN CABINET.

BOOKS and dainties the true must stay. Nor let its green head to the day, Till useless months are topped away.

And thus both human nature do: Till it hath cured its pruning, too. It cannot grow up straight and true. —Phoebe Cary.

Fish.

The flesh of fish which contains a large portion of fat and protein, in comparison to the other food principles, is next in importance to meat as food.

The meat of fish is not as nutritive as meat, because it contains less of protein. Having shorter and more tender fibers it is easier of digestion and is therefore a useful food for invalids and those of sedentary habits.

Fish has so little flavor and loses it so easily, having less of the extractives than meat, it has become to be considered not nutritious.

One and a half pounds of fish is equal to one pound of lean meat in nutritive value.

On account of its abundance and its cheapness in most districts, when compared to meats, together with its wholesomeness, it is an invaluable food. This is especially true when considered as a hot weather food.

Fish are red and white as to flesh. The so-called red-blooded fish are those having the oil distributed throughout the body. Such fish are less digestible and among this variety are mackerel, salmon and bluefish.

The white-blooded fish are those which have the oil in the liver, the flesh is dryer and is more easily digested. Haddock, lake trout and white fish belong to this class.

The cod is an exception to these as it has a coarse fiber and is indigestible.

The process of salting hardens the fiber of fish tissues and renders them less digestible.

The presence of phosphorus in fish was supposed to make it especially valuable as a food to the brain. This belief has no foundation, other than the fact that the brain contains phosphorus, and it was supposed that fish, being rich in that element, would supply it.

Many meats contain a large percent of phosphorus, too, so that the brain may have its supply from many sources.

Baked Hominy.

This way of preparing hominy makes it suitable to serve with meat. Mix well two cups of cold boiled hominy with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three well beaten eggs, one cup of milk and one-half level teaspoon of salt. Turn into a buttered pan or baking dish and set in the oven for about half an hour. The heat should be moderate on account of the eggs and milk used.

Liver and Bacon.

Fry some bacon cut in thin slices until crisp, cut a calf's liver into slices half an inch thick and dip them in the bacon fat. Broil and season with salt and pepper. Serve on a hot platter with the bacon as a garnish.

Chicken Pie With Sweet Potatoes.

Disjoint the chicken and cook in boiling water until nearly tender. Pare and slice half a dozen potatoes, and cook until tender in boiling salted water. Take a baking dish with a rich biscuit dough and fill with the chicken and potato. Pour in the broth from the chicken, thicken with a rounding tablespoon of flour and season with salt and pepper and a rounding tablespoon of butter. Roll a top crust out to fit, take out a round piece from the center and bake in a quick oven. Do not gash the crust with a knife, but take out a piece so large that the opening will not close by the rising of the crust in baking.

Gray Hair in the Young.

A peculiarity about the gray hair of the young is that it is almost always entirely white, and becomes so suddenly. All the hairs are equally affected, and one seldom sees this mixed color, or iron gray, so common in those of middle or advanced age.

Not Enough Clergymen.

There is a scarcity of clergymen in Switzerland, says the London Daily Mirror. A German woman, a doctor of divinity, has taken advantage of this fact, and is trying to get herself appointed to fill a long-vacant pulpit in one of the cantons.

TREASURES ALL ALONG THE WAY.

There are treasures scattered all along the way of life if we only look for them. No day goes by without it deposits something of value at our door. That is, if we have shown any inclination to receive it.

Our attitude towards life has a great deal to do with our accumulation of treasures. If we are discontented, dissatisfied, and with a disposition as full of foibles as a porcupine is of quills we needn't expect much in the treasure line. If we are happy, disinterested, contented to do our best in our own best way, we will find the treasures and plenty of them.

Every man who knows life should be filled with pleasures. The recollection of our pleasures in passing over life's way make up our pride in living. The man who can't discover some cause for joy must be inherently wrong. Every good friend is a treasure not to be scorned. Every honest handshake is a treasure. Every smile that brightens our way is a treasure. Every merry-valued child that crosses our way is a treasure. Every noble-hearted and pure-minded woman who comes into the circle of our acquaintance, is a treasure.

Those who form the inner circles of our lives are our treasures. If we will only let them be. The friendship given us by others; the affection bestowed upon us by those who have learned the secrets of our nature; the contentment that keeps our souls happy and light are all treasures not to be despised.

Unfortunately, most of us allow life's things to slip us. We grow peevish and unhappy at the first thwarting. We become angry and impatient where we should remain calm and content. We are hasty and unreasonable, where we should be slow and patient. So we go about destroying our own lives and building up a chain of regrets that bind us so closely to the unpleasant spots in life's highway that we never are able to go further.

And because we do these things, the richest treasures become as dross. We value nothing that we should, because our sense of appreciation has been lost through our blind ignorance. We fail to see that where we should go forward without hesitancy and we become unsatisfied to ourselves and a burden to others.

We ought not to lose our interest in life. We should not allow that spirit of youthfulness to depart that finds joy in every legitimate thing. We should not permit ourselves to grow old and crabbed at any time of life.

WHITE VS. BROWN BREAD EXPERIMENTS.

As the result of exhaustive analyses and experiments, Dr. Lauder Brunton and F. W. Tunnicliffe of England reported the following conclusions on the relative merits of white and brown bread: "1. White bread is, weight for weight, more nutritious than brown. 2. In the case of people with irritable intestines, white bread is to be preferred to brown. 3. In the case of people with sluggish intestines, brown bread is preferable to white, as it tends to maintain regular peristaltic action, and insure regular evacuation of the bowels, with all its attendant advantages. 4. In cases where the proportion of mineral ingredients, and especially of lime salts, in other articles of food or drink is insufficient, brown bread is preferable to white."

Did it ever occur to you that the kind of shoes you wear have a great deal to do with your "Beauty Ills"? A successful specialist in the treatment of facial defects recently made the positive statement that ill-fitting and ill-shaped shoes were a frequent cause for the deep lines so often seen on women's faces. He also said that these lines were among the most difficult to treat.

This does not seem so foolish upon second thoughts, as it does at first. Did you ever try to walk when your feet hurt you? Perhaps the hurt was caused by a tiny corn upon your smallest toe, but it wrinkled your face up into all kinds of lines that were unbecoming, to say the least. If the pain were to spread all through your feet, as is the case when the feet are cramped out of shape by tight or ill-shaped shoes, you can readily see why the lines would become more marked and would gradually deepen until they were very hard to smooth out.

Ill-fitting shoes are also responsible for many very troublesome wrinkles in the disposition, and these are always reflected in the face. One can go even farther and say with perfect truth that the health suffers even in greater proportion, from having one's feet cramped out of their normal shape.

The nerves of the feet are more sensitive than the nerves in the hands, and when we encase the feet in shoes which prevent all the normal and natural action of the various bones and ligaments and muscles—intended by Nature to give elasticity to the walk and support the weight of the body with ease—we are guilty of real cruelty to ourselves. The pressure causes acute suffering of the feet and this reacts upon the entire nervous system.

When the back begins to pain and the head to ache; when the eyes feel strained; when neuralgia or sciatica or some other of the many ills we struggle and suffer to stay with us for awhile; when an ache from between the brows becomes habitual and fretful lines form around the corners of the mouth, we never think for a moment that any or all of these troubles may be due to our shoes of our feet.

The shoes should conform to the lines of the normal foot, and should be large enough to permit the free action of the bones and ligaments. A pretty foot is not possible when its owner is footed in shoes that compress it in a tight shoe with high heels and narrow toes. Such a shoe will not only deform the foot but will be likely to injure it past remedy.

Answers to Questions

Patsy: You will find that many cases of baldness are due to the fact that the pores of the scalp are filled with foreign matter which effectually clogs them and prevents the hair from pushing through. The hair follicles may not be destroyed at all, and may be ready to start a growth of hair if the clogged condition could be removed and the hair given a chance to grow. Sometimes there are tiny, and almost invisible plugs of dead skin, and when they are removed with a suitable tonic, the hair grows in a seemingly marvelous manner. It is really very simple, but is not generally understood. I shall be glad to give you further information about your special case, but will need the self-addressed envelope.

Madge and Ruth: The hands are rather slow to yield to the influence of a building cream, but if you will use the lilac paste regularly at night and occasionally soak the hands in warm olive oil for twenty minutes you can bring back the youthful appearance again and greatly improve the texture of the skin as well. The lilac paste is prepared especially for the hands and is very agreeable to use. You may also have the address where you can procure the remedy for relieving the burning and painful feet, but I will need the self-addressed envelope.

Ever Measure Thread?

A dealer of weights and measures has been visiting drygoods stores during the past few days, and in each one has purchased a spool of cotton, for which he has paid three cents, and invariably has found that the amount of cotton does not measure as much as is specified on the spool. According to specifications there should be 200 yards on each spool, but the measurements vary between 160 and 200.—Boston Transcript.

Bare Sign of Age.

"I used to have six pairs of new shoes every year," says Louise M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury. "Then the number was reduced annually to five, four, and three pairs. Last year I had only two pairs of new shoes. I don't walk so heavily, so fast, nor so aggressively as I used to. I have a great ambition and capacity for work as ever; but I know that I am growing old, because my shoes last longer."—The Sunday Magazine.

Half the pattern for a turn-over collar is given today. This must be duplicated to form the whole collar. (The box is shown reduced. It should be made same height as collar, following the latter exactly as to distance of dots apart, etc.) The edge is padded a bit closely buttonhole, and the small squares and dots are worked in the solid satin stitch. ## TELLS OF TRIP ON SUNNY GULF

H. F. BLISS VOICES OF PLEASANT
OCEAN VOYAGE THROUGH FLORIDA EVERGLADES.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Party Were Guests of Skipper on Fishing Schooner—Incidents of Journey Pleasantly Recorded.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bliss, who are spending the winter in Florida, were members of a party that recently took an ocean voyage on a fishing schooner as the guests of the skipper. Mr. Bliss thus interestingly records the experience of the journey.

When the good ship "Roamer" cleared from her dock at Punta Gorda, Florida, one bright day early in April her passenger list included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benedict of Station Island, New York; Dr. Emma B. Hale of Spartanburg, South Carolina; George Chabon of Annapolis, Maryland; New York; and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bliss of Janesville, Wis., all guests of the National hotel at Cleveland, out for a cruise down the harbor and out on the gulf to the 10,000 islands in the Everglade country, 125 miles south.

"The Roamer" was not a passenger boat but simply a schooner with auxiliary power, of some 20 tons burden, engaged in the fishing trade down the west coast. Her cargo out was to be distributed among the fishing camps on the way down, and her hold was loaded with fish on the return voyage.

She was manned with a crew of four men and when Captain Ernest Weeks invited the little party to share port luck with him and explore a section of country not often visited by tourists, the honor was appreciated, and the invitation promptly accepted.

An ocean voyage on a first-class passenger steamer is always a pleasant experience, but the novelty of a ride on the gulf in a fishing smack is a different proposition, and when the luggage was stored away in the pilot house, where a couple of bunks accommodated the ladies, and the stove in the little galley amidships commenced to pour out a cloud of smoke, while a sailor boy prepared the dinner, the novelty of the surroundings was most impressive.

An hour later when hot coffee of choice vintage was served from tin cups, and smoking tea biscuit and fried mullet contributed to a substantial meal, the powder plates and homely surroundings were forgotten, and the little party that lined up around the deck house complimented the sailor boy chef until he blushed with embarrassment. There's nothing like a fish dinner on a fishing smack for dyspepsia.

Just as dusk the revolving light at Sanibel lighthouse showed up ten miles away and two hours later the little vessel was rolling in the long swells which came in from the gulf on a southwest breeze.

Off to the left, looming up like a big hotel, the electric lights of the big government dredge which for months has been engaged in deepening the channel twelve feet, across the bar which obstructs navigation, making entrance to the harbor dangerous in bad weather.

It was a bright, moonlight night and sleep was the question. The top of the deck house served as a lounging place, and the shore line to the east, a mile away, made a pleasing background to the canopy of stars overhead.

At midnight the shore lights of Naples and the long stretch of white, sandy beach, sparkled in the distance and Captain Weeks entertained his guests with a tragic incident which occurred two years ago, when three young men were swamped in a launch, and one of them, a Chicago boy, in attempting to swim ashore, was attacked by a leopard shark, within 50 yards of the Naples pier. His father offered $10,000 for the body, but of course it was never found.

Twelve miles south of Naples is Marco, the southernmost resort on the west coast, and half a dozen miles below the "Roamer," by the aid of a searchlight, found her way through Caxambra Pass, a narrow channel, into Tarpon Bay, where is located the great clam chowder factory of Burnham and company of New York.

The supply of clams in the bay is exhausted and now the fishermen go outside on the reefs, thirty miles away. They bring great boat loads of clams as large as a pint bowl, and the factory handled daily from November until May, 250 bushels.

Seventy-five people are employed in the factory and the daily output is 1,200 dozen chowder and bouillon put up in pint cans and bottles ready for the New York market. The product is shipped to Key West in the company's boats, and there transferred to freighters for the east.

This plant was entirely demolished by the hurricane and tidal wave which swept over the coast last October, and has since been rebuilt and equipped with modern machinery. It ought to be a gold mine for the owners.

The "Roamer," after discharging her load at the little fish house near by, headed for the gulf, through a treacherous channel, and was soon fast aground on a sand bar where she laid until daylight when the incoming tide helped her off. This was when the passengers slept with nothing over them but a clear sky and nothing under them but a board catamaran, but it was a balmy night, and no one thought of discomfort.

Twenty-five miles more down the gulf and at 8 o'clock in the morning the little boat headed for "Sandily" Pass, the entrance to the 10,000 islands and Chokoloska Bay. An hour later she tied up at a fish house built on piles surrounded by coral and oyster reefs in the wildest and most God-forsaken country imaginable.

A launch was in waiting and the party was transferred across the bay five miles and up the Alton river to the Seminole country where four days were spent at the home of George W. Strater, the pioneer settler and trader of the wildest country on the coast.

PEARL FISHING SEASON OPENED

J. P. ALBEE OF THIS CITY HAS GONE TO JOIN THE RANKS OF FISHERS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

With the opening of the pearl fishing season J. P. Albee of this city annually takes his departure for the Mississippi river there to seek his fortune in search for the fresh water pearls. The last season was a profitable one for the pearl fishers and that of 1911 promises to surpass it in the value of pearls taken.

Mr. Albee has been successful in securing several valuable stones during his expeditions and the fascination of the work has ever kept him busy with his plans for the future. It is claimed that the upper Mississippi river is the richest field owing to the low stage of the water which is liable to continue throughout the season.

The last season brought to light much information that will prove invaluable to this year's clam diggers. Because of the shallows many rich clam beds that in former years were not discovered because of the great depth of water were fished out and yielded rich returns in pearls. When the river was unusually low, the diggers dragged early charts which located the unexplored beds, and knowing the exact location of the beds, the pearl seekers expect to have no trouble in keeping busy this season.

Strange to say, few extraordinary or rare pearls were found along the river last year, despite the fact that the market was flooded with bushels of white gems from the Mississippi. Many worth several hundred dollars were marketed by the clam diggers of Muscatine, Winona and La Crosse, but few brought as much as $1,000 to $2,000, as has been the case in other seasons.

Notwithstanding the declaration that there are still rich fields for the pearl fisher, it is said that statisticians gathered in 1910 prove that the industry is on the wane in the lower river. The fertile fields of years to come are located between St. Paul and St. Louis. Last year Muscatine diggers were the biggest harvesters of the shelly concretions.

But reports of last year's great pearl harvest should not lead the seeker of good pearls to be misled into thinking that he will be able to procure good gems at low prices, says the expert, for good pearls were scarce last year, and most likely will be this season. It is true that pearls of inferior grade are cheaper than ever before.

Mississippi river pearl will go to all sections of the globe this year. Some of the greatest salt water beds were panned out, and as the Mississippi river furnishes most of the fresh water pearls Europe, as well as this country, will be dependent upon the Mississippi digger.

Farmers who want new locations where land is cheap, yet where the climate, the soil, the conveniences are good, will do well to investigate the new country—The STANLEY COUNTRY, in Northern Wisconsin.

I have listed with me for sale farms of all sizes at prices as low as $12.50 per acre and up to $20.00. The land is located on three railways, is but 128 miles from St. Paul, Minn., 133 miles from Duluth, and only 245 miles from Milwaukee. It is bound to advance—to double and treble its value.

The land is cut over Hard Wood land with plenty of tame grasses planted by the owners wherever it has been cleared. Alyske and Timothy grow in abundance.

Investigate this proposition if you are in the market for good land at a low price. Write me for literature or call at my office.

Senator James A. O'Gorman.

LATE upon a balmy night of spring, three years back, a grizzled, bearded, kee-hatted beelawhammered little man of scarce eight and forty, turned his night key softly, for 'twas a shame to disturb the wife—and opened his door upon a harrowing spectacle.

Within the hallway the butler of the house was being Jackjohnsonized by a burly negro burglar, and it took a very small bit of a jiffy for the master to perceive that the faithful lord of his pantry would not come up for another round.

The man in the smart evening clothes was meagre of frame, as we have said, but the blood of two Irish parents was in his veins and only one glance at the picture before him sent that fluid a-coursing through his system as hot as molten emeralds.

To keep a short story short, the late homecoming threw down his title, turned in, licked the black man within an inch of his black life and turned him over to the police.

And henceforth and hereafter the Honorable Joe Bailey, the Honorable Jeff Davis and the other honorable pugilists of the United States Senate must mind their P's and Q's, for our aforementioned burglar bouncer has now become a member of their dignified body, wherefrom he has displaced our good old friend, Dr. Channcey M. Depew.

Sometime before the Civil War there landed at Castle Garden a likely lad from Munster and a pretty colleen from Ulster. And the North and the South of Ireland became reunited when young Thomas and Ellen went up before the Priest and then home to their little house in Greenwich village, now a part of Greater New York.

This Thomas O'Gorman was never a lad for letting the grass grow under his feet, for sure, and while his Ellen was busy bringing up their fine bit of a boy and their two likely girls, Thomas was out making two simoleons grow where only one had grown before.

Their only son, James Aloysius—named for his patron saint—was the eldest of the three youngsters. He was not quite a year old when Deaneuegard died upon Summer. To be more explicit, he was born on May 5th, 1860. By the time he was old enough to digest the three R's, the little family had the wolf scared far enough from the door to send him to the public schools, instead of putting him to work in the factory. But when he was fourteen, and a college course was being planned for him, the priest came in and gave his good father the last sacrament.

Young James was fourteen when orphaned, but the good mother kept him at school. She did more. She saw to it that he got into the College of the City of New York. Here he remained until nineteen, when all sorts of callings for him were planned in the family circle. But our Jimmy was not in for anything but becoming a Judge. Would you mind the likes of that, now, from a mere brat of a boy?

And how did our Jimmy set out upon his benchward climb? First he got a clerkship in a New York law office, and although pretty tired after assaulting the keys of his typewriter, all day, he put in his nights at the law school. Instead of pausing, on his way home, to argue the sporting news with the gang on the corner, he went home and dug his proboscis into his Blackstone. But he didn't let his blood grow pink, not at all, at all! There was no likelier lad at a scrap than James, when his dander got up, or when any one threw him a slur.

The luckiest tack that the lad James took upon Fortune's sea was made by one turn of his tiller during these law school days. It brought him up to Cooper Institute where he joined the Literary and Debating Society. Here he thrashed out all of the burning questions of the day and learned the fundamentals of parliamentary law which, though he dreamed it not, were to be of vital value to him thirty years later in his busy life.

Among the youths who debated these grave questions with him were a certain John W. Goff, and one James Fitzgerald. The three were serving their apprenticeship for exactly the same trade as later we shall see.

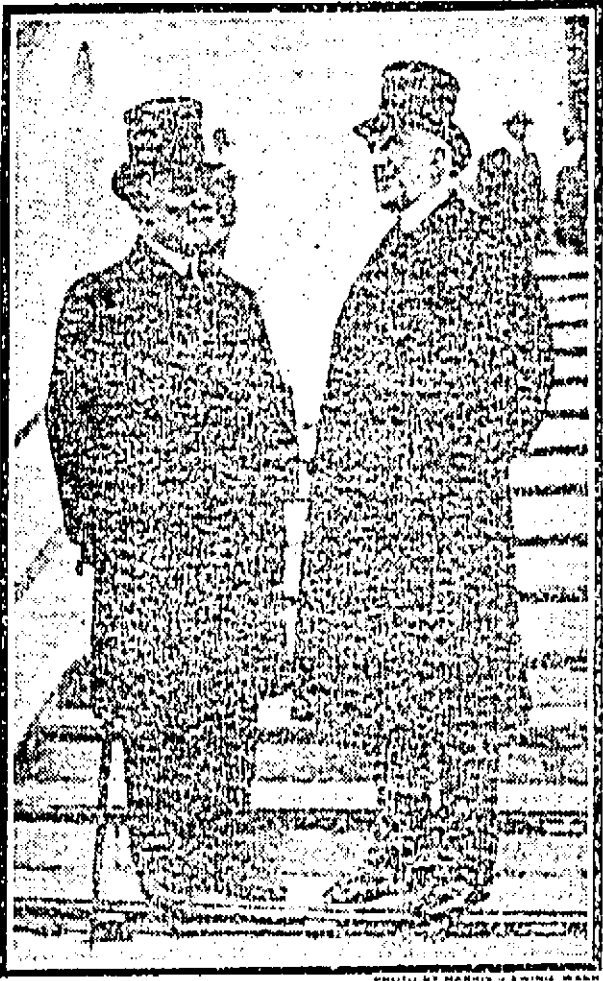

When he finished at law school and was ready to take his LL.D., James was made President of his class. Three years before Ellhu Root had received the same honor in the same school.

But young James had no idea in those days that fate was later to couple also him and Ellhu very closely together.

Our young hopeful, like his dad, was never for losing any time as you've guessed, and the very month of his graduation he had himself admitted to the bar. Practice soon began to come his way. But he still sighed to become a Judge.

After two years he had made enough to make his first trip to Washington and the making of that trip meant that James was now a prosperous young barrister. It was not politics that took him to the national Capitol. He went there on his honeymoon. That was in January, 1884, and when he led his young bride into the big white Capitol, he brought her up against a prophecy. But neither of them knew it. Their thoughts were too full of the present to bother a jot about the future.

It was sometime after this that the prosperous young attorney happened to pick up a volume entitled "Progress and Poverty." He read it from cover to cover and then went out and bought such other works as he could find, by the same author, who was Henry George, the famous single taxer. And although a Democrat, who had been drafted by Tammany Hall when he started his career, James O'Gorman was soon aboard the single-taxer's bandwagon. So when George ran for Secretary of State, in 1887, we find O'Gorman on the same ticket, a candidate for District Court Judge. Tammany bent him, but by a small majority, James was not to be a Judge as yet!

But wait for James. After working hard for the next six years, and increasing his practice all of the while, he bobbed up again as candidate for District Judge, this time on the regular Democratic ticket, whereupon Ex-Mayor Grant had helped to put him. He did not know Richard Croker in those days, he says, so Dick has no share of the credit for helping James to realize his first ambition.

For six years O'Gorman was District Judge, and then came a promotion. In 1890 while still in his thirties he was elected Justice of the Supreme Court of New York, there to share honors with those old cronies of debating society days, Fitzgerald and Goff.

Now our hero broke the Albany deadlock the other week and became Ellhu Root's colleague in the United States Senate, you already know. Thus was that class presidency, in the same law school, the starting point of the public careers of both of the present Senators from the Empire State.

In accepting the Senatorship Justice O'Gorman thrust aside a salary of $17,500 a year to receive one of $10,000 less, per annum. But such slight matters do not worry him, these days. When his law practice was interrupted he made—his published—some thirty real estate investments, which have netted him a handsome fortune, estimated by some to closely approach the million mark.

He is wealthy also in children. There have been ten, altogether, and of these seven remain—all daughters save one, a boy of fourteen. The bride whom he showed the interior of the National Capitol twenty-seven years ago entered it again with him, the other day, to see him don the toga just doffed by Chauncey Depew.

Could the new Senator from the Empire State but shift his political views, he might now become a candidate for the "Golf Cabinet," for at home he has been a habitue of the links and an adept at driving and putting.

Before entering politics he was a country doctor.

TO KILLER it was as if his body had been penetrated thrice by a needle of fire. The anguish of it was exquisite, stupefying. He was aware of a darkening, reeling world, wherein men's faces swam like moons, pallid, staring, and of a mighty and invincible lethargy that pounced upon him, body, brain and soul, like a black panther springing from the ambush of the night. Yet there were still words that must be spoken, lest they live in his subconsciousness to torment him through all the long, black night that was to receive him. He tried to steady himself, and lifted an arm that vibrated like the sprung limb of a sapling, sighting to the secret agent. "Labretouche," he said thickly. "Sophia . . . out of India . . . at once . . . life . . ."

The girl's arms received him as he fell.

CHAPTER XX.

A Later Day.

A man awoke from a long dream of night and fear of passion, pain, and death, and opened eyes whose vision seemed curiously clear, to realize a new world, very unlike that in which the incoherent action of his dream had moved—a world of light and lively air, as sweet and wholesome as glistening white paint, sunshine, and an abundance of pure, cool air could render it.

Because he had known these things in a former existence, he understood that he lay in the lower berth of a first-cabin stateroom, aboard an ocean steamship; a spacious, bright box of a room, through whose open ports awayed brilliant shafts of temperate sunlight, together with great gusts of the salt sweet breath of the open sea. Though then, too, he could see patches of unclouded blue, athwart which now and again gulls would sweep on flashing, motionless pinions.

His eyeballs seem to move restlessly in their sockets, and his head felt very light and empty, although so heavy that he could not lift it from the pillow. But he managed to shift his gaze from the window until it rested upon a man's face—a giant, impressive brown face illuminated by steady and thoughtful eyes, filled with that mystic, unshakable spirit of fatalism that is the Genius of the eastern peoples. The head itself stood out with almost startling distinctness against the background of pure white. It was swathed with an immaculate white turban.

The sick man felt that he recognized this countenance—had known it, rather, in some vague, half-remembered life before his latest death. The name . . . ? He felt his lips move, and that they were thin and glazed. Moistening them with his tongue he made another attempt to articulate. A thin whisper passed them in two breaths: "Ram . . . Nath . . ."

Hearing this, the dark man started out of his abstraction, cast a swift, pitiful glance at the sick man's face, and came to hold a tumbler to his lips. The liquid, colorless, acid, and pungent, slipped into his mouth, and he had to swallow whether he would or no. When the fluid drop disappeared, Ram Nath put down the glass, smiled, laid a finger on his lips, and went on up to the stateroom.

After awhile the man without an identity fell asleep, calmly, restfully, in absolute peace. When again he awakened it was with the knowledge that he was David Amber, and that a woman sat beside him.

Trotted Off Into the Shade of the Tamarisks.

"Knowing what it meant to me—what it meant to both of us, David." "So you weren't offended, that night?" "I loved you even then, David. I think I must have loved you from that first day at Nokomis. Do you remember . . . ?"

His eyes widened, perplexed, staring into her grave, dear eyes. "Then why did you pretend—?" With this low, caressing laugh of a happy child, the girl knelt by the side of his berth, and laid her cheek against his own. "Oh, David, my David! When do you expect to understand the heart of a woman, dear heart of mine?"

CHAPTER XXI.

The Final Incarnation.

About five o'clock of an evening in April the Commodore Carolina, four hours out from Queenstown and buckling down to a night's hard work against the northwesterly gale, shipped a sea. It was not much of a sea—merely a playful slap of a wave that broke against the staunch black side and glanced upward in a shower of spray, splattering liberally a solitary passenger who had been showing enough interest in the weather to remain on deck until that particular moment. Apparently undisturbed by the misadventure, he shook himself and laughed a sober, contented laugh, found a handkerchief and mopped his face with it, then, with a final approving survey of the lowering and billigerent canopy of wind-cloud that overhung the tortured ocean, permitted himself to be blown aft to the door of the first-cabin smoking room.

Opening this by main stream, he entered. The gale saved him the bother of closing it. Removing his raincoat and cap and depositing them on a convenient chair, he glanced round the room and discovered that he shared it with a single passenger, who was placidly exhaling the virtues of an excellent cigarette. Upon this gentleman the newcomer bent a regard steadfast and questioning, but after returning it casually the smoker paid him no further attention. Dissatisfied, the other moved toward him, and the deck slanted suddenly and obligingly the better to accelerate his progress, so that he brought up with a lurch in the seat next the smoker. The latter raised the eyebrows of surprise and noted that the gentleman had not hurt himself.

"I didn't, thank you, Mr. David Amber." Mr. David Amber looked the gentleman over with heightened interest. "You've the advantage of me, sir," Amber summed up the result of his scrutiny. "It's not the first time," asserted the other, with an argumentative shake of his head. "No?" Light leaped in Amber's eyes. "Labretouche!"

"Surprised you, eh?" The Englishman grinned with pleasure, pumping Amber's arm cordially. "I don't mind owing that to me, I mean to."

"Well, considering that this is positively your first appearance as yourself on the stage of my life, you don't deserve any credit for being able to deceive me. When I got accustomed to remembering you only as a native—generally as a native in dirty pink satin . . . Do you know, I made all sorts of equities after you, but they told me, in response to my wires to Calcutta, that you'd dropped out of the world entirely. I had begun to fear that those damned natives must have got you, after all, and that I'd never see you again."

Reason in Animals.

Watson in "The Reasoning Power of Animals" holds that they reason; Rousseau in "Animal Intelligence" is inclined to the belief that some have reason and others sense, while Darwin in "Psychology" holding that "dogs have sense to protect their owner's property, though never so taught."

As a Cynic Sees It.

We are informed by the esteemed Kansas City Star that "the average citizen has only one chance in 24,000 to live to be 100 years old." Somewhat the average citizen almost convinces us that one chance in 24,000 is too many.

Poiled the General.

There is a story of a Russian general who asked a squire at night, "How many stars are in the sky?" "The squire was not at a loss for an answer. 'I will see, sir,' he said, and calmly began counting them. After he had reached 700 the general rode off, for it was bitterly cold.

Lexington, Ky.—The old-time Callahan-Hargis feud, or rather the echo of it, has broken out in Breathitt county.

Deaton, accompanied by Luke Begley, went to the home of White and created a disturbance, shooting White in the thigh. White got his rifle into action by that time and shot Deaton three times through the head and Begley through the head and shoulder. Begley was able to get away. Deaton died where he fell. White died later from his wound.

The killing occurred in an isolated part of Breathitt county, 15 miles from Jackson, on the Perry county line. The men's relatives were notified of the killing by courier and telephone and both sides, armed with rifles and revolvers, at once left their homes for the affected district. An outbreak has since been hourly expected, as feeling is at fever heat on both sides, and the killing was needed to fan it into flame.

White was a brother-in-law of John Abner, who was assassinated in the streets of Jackson last August. Abner was one of the men alleged to be a hired assassin of Judge Hargis and Ed Callahan and was the only one of the notable quartet of alleged assassins who did not confess. Those who did not confess that they helped put enemies of Hargis and Callahan out of the way during the time those gentlemen ran threats of a feud nature in Breathitt county six or seven years ago, were Curt Jeff, John Smith, Asbury Spicer and Moses Feltner. Feltner did not kill any one, but he confessed that Judge Hargis employed him to help kill Jim Murcum. The others are alleged to have assisted in the assassination of James Cockrill, Dr. B. D. Cox and Murcum.

Although Ange White, the slayer of Jason Deaton, never was indicted for participation in any of the assassinations, he was a star witness against Hargis and Callahan, and testified that Hargis had employed him to shoot down several of the enemies of the Hargis clan in the court house in Jackson, and aware Hargis gave him a pistol to do the work with.

At no time during the reign of trouble during the old Hargis-Callahan feud were the Deatons mixed up in the general feud, but when Ed Callahan was shot from ambush two years ago and nearly killed it was charged by Callahan, following his recovery from the wound, that the Deaton faction was responsible for the shooting. Through a peace agreement signed by both factions, however, none of those arrested for the attempt on Callahan's life was prosecuted and no further trouble was encountered until the assassination of Abner.

When Abner was murdered in the streets of Jackson, Deaton was one of the men arrested for it. He was tried with three other accused and all were acquitted. Since then trouble had been brewing between the Deaton faction and the Whites, as the Whites all believed Abner was killed by Deaton and his men.

The trouble culminated as told above—or rather the first chapter culminated—when Deaton, accompanied by Luke Begley, one of his retainers, went to the home of White and created the disturbance, leaving the scene feet first.

The Deaton and White families are large. The Whites have always been loyal to the Callahan and Hargis interests, especially the latter since Judge Hargis was killed by his son Beech.

I decided to try a good kidney medicine and as I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. It did not take this remedy long to bring me entire relief. ## WOULD BOOST CITY IN AUTO WORLD BY HILL-CLIMB MEET

Contest Similar to Those Held in Algonquin, Ill., Suggested by Local Man As Plan to Put City on Auto Map.

A hill-climbing contest in Janesville in the latter part of the summer or the early fall is the suggestion of a local automobile enthusiast, as the finishing touch to a program to put Janesville "on the map" as an automobile town and a desirable place for automobilists to go. The plan as outlined by the Janesville man is quite extensive and according to his prediction would be a great thing for the city.

The scheme is to select one of the hills in or near the city for the scene of the contest as there are, it is said, a number of these that would be suitable for the purpose. Janesville is well situated for such an event. Milwaukee, Madison, Beloit, Evansville and Fort Atkinson would probably send representatives to the meet and it is predicted that several thousand automobiles would be attracted to this city.

The benefits would not accrue to any one class or to the automobilists in particular as the presence of a large number of people in the city would mean an immense volume of business for the tradespeople. Up to a few years ago, the mention of the name Algonquin suggested hardly anything more than the name of an Indian tribe. But the great hill was discovered by some of the auto enthusiasts and the Indian name is now forgotten in the renown which the Illinois town has won for its hill-climbing contests. The days on which these are held are events in the town's history for it brings immense crowds of automobilists from near and far. The people receive the visitors open-armed and reap a rich reward for their hospitality.

The proposition is to bring some such attraction to Janesville and spread Janesville's fame over the land. If the right spirit were shown in receiving the out of town people, the benefits would be large. It was neglected last year, but sufficient interest and enthusiasm was not shown to put it through.

The plan is, if the scheme materializes, to hold the tests from a standing start in the morning and a running start in the afternoon.

Finish Each Day.

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could; some blunders and absurdities crept in—forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day. You shall begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be encumbered with your old nonsense.—Emerson.

Birthday Candles.

The car of the future will have fore doors. Both in Europe and America, in the finest makes, fore-door models are practically universal.

Before many months, open-front models will be as unsalable as the old-time rear-door tonneaus. Most open front cars are simply left-over models. And they are, or should be, sold at heavy reductions.

In buying a touring car for years to come, insist on a fore-door model. Get a style which is coming in, not a style going out. No reduction in price can compensate for a car that is out of date.

See that the maker doesn't add the fore doors to a left-over open-front body. The result is a botch.

The finest fore-door models—like the Overland—have the flush bodies, giving six inches more room in each seat. They have the straight lines which give impressive appearance. Note how every curve and line in the Overland picture shows the car's up-to-date-ness.

TIRE trouble destroys the pleasure of touring and converts your outing into drudgery unless you drive a Rambler. This is the only car in America equipped with the Spare Wheel. It eliminates worry about tire trouble by making it so easy to substitute a wheel with a perfectly inflated tire for an injured one. No tiresome pumping in the hot sun or cold rain. The change is quickly made and provides a permanent remedy. Every feature of the Rambler is designed for the owner's comfort, safety and convenience. The Offset Crank Shaft enables you to throttle down on high gear no faster than a man usually walks; to glide along quietly without frequent gear shifting in crowded traffic, and obviates the necessity of rushing the hard pulls through sand and up grades. The Straight Line Drive saves power; big wheels and tires afford added comfort and tire economy; the brakes are larger than necessary; the safety starting device protects you from injury while cranking.

YOU WILL LIKE THE CARTERCAR And Here's Why!

You will like it because it is simple in construction and easy to understand. Any owner can operate and care for his Cartercar with ease. You will like it because it is reliable. The few working parts of a Cartercar seldom gets out of order. You can go and come anywhere, any time of the year, when you drive a Cartercar. You will like it because the number of speeds is unlimited on a Cartercar. You can go so slowly that you can follow a team of walking horses on a road where it is impossible to pass or on a crowded street—and do it without the motor racing.

Every little variation of the change speed lever gives a different speed, and in combination with this you still have all the different speeds of the motor. There are a thousand speeds from zero up.

You will like it because it has but one lever control. A driver does not get confused in a tight place with a Cartercar. Push the one lever forward and the speed is ahead. The farther you push it the faster the speed. Pull it backward and the speed is reversed.

What could be more easily understood—what is more natural? The Cartercar can do this because it has a Friction Transmission. This transmission is fully covered by the Carter patents. That's why more motor car manufacturers do not use the Friction Transmission.

The Cartercar also has a patented Chain-in-Oil Drive. A chain is the most economical transmitter of power known. When it is operated within a dust and dirt proof case in a bath of oil as in the Cartercar, it is absolutely without an equal as an automobile drive.

The Cartercar has no clutch to slip—no gears to strip—no grease packings to renew—no shafts to align—no bevel gears to howl—no noise. You can easily see how much trouble is avoided with the Cartercar.

The Cartercar will climb a fifty per cent grade with a full load. It will do this because of the high percentage of power developed in the motor that is delivered to the rear wheels.

It is this steady, constant transmission of power through the Friction Transmission and the Chain-in-Oil Drive, that enables the Cartercar to plough through mud and sand which other automobiles cannot go through.

The Value of Friction Transmission and the Chain-in-Oil Drive

It means simplicity and durability. Practically all the parts which give trouble in other cars are eliminated in the Cartercar.

The Friction Transmission of the Cartercar consists of an alloy friction disc fastened to the end of a shaft which is bolted to the rear of the fly wheel through a cross arm and two thin steel plates. These plates make the construction solid and one which will not wear out, require lubrication, or attention, and at the same time allows the disc and shaft to move forward and backward by means of the left pedal thus engaging or disengaging it with the friction wheel.

The friction wheel has a compressed paper fiber rim which possesses maximum adhesion. This wheel is carried on a shaft with the sprocket driving chain.

The fiber rims on the wheels will wear for upwards of four thousand miles and a new one lists at only

$3.00. It is therefore plain that it costs considerable less to renew these from time to time than to buy dope for the ordinary gear transmission. At the same time the great danger of stripping gears on steep hills, sandy spots, and in mud holes, is entirely done away with.

By moving the single control lever at the driver's right, forward or backward, the wheel is moved to any point across the surface of the disc, giving an unlimited number of speeds between zero and high, in addition to the reverse.

This arrangement does away with the clutch and all gears. It makes a simple, effective, noiseless drive.

Because of the efficiency of the ample friction transmission the Cartercar will climb a fifty per cent grade with a load. It will travel over country roads which other cars cannot get through. On a crowded street it is easy to drive behind a loaded truck without the motor racing and gears grinding and with positively no danger of bumping into the same, damaging lamps, mud guards and radiators.

A cast metal case surrounds the chain. This case is absolutely dust, grit and mud tight. It is filled with heavy oil and makes the drive noiseless. With this arrangement, the chain will last indefinitely and will require practically no attention.

We do not hesitate for a minute in stating that the new Chain-Case with which all Cartercars are equipped is the greatest improvement which has been made in automobile construction for some time.

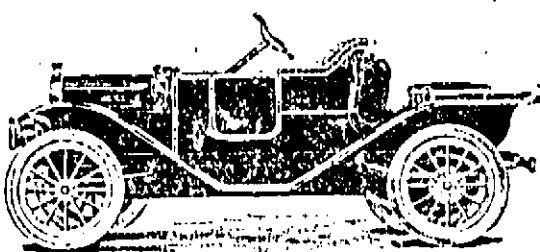

There has been no one thing since the friction transmission was invented which has added as much to the pleasure of the motorist who owns and drives a car for business or pleasure.

The housing makes the chain run so smooth and even that you can hardly imagine that it is a gasoline car. There is not as much noise as there is with many electric.

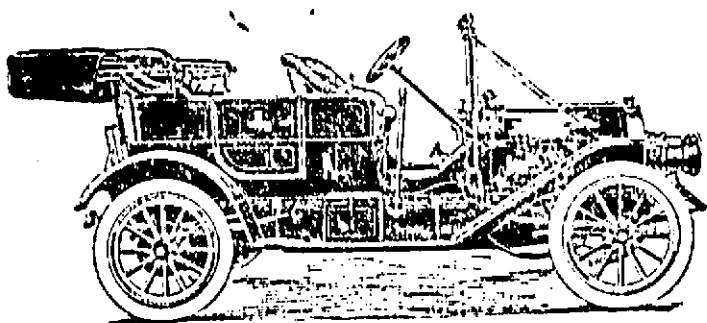

The Chain-Case is cast. It is not a tin contraption nor is it made of cloth. The joints are all accurately planned and fitted, making the housing absolutely tight. While this is the case, the whole is neatly and slightly without the cumbersome appearance noted beneath some cars you may have seen.

The case is provided with floating plates which allow a free and easy movement of the axle. They require no attention whatever when adjustments of axle alignment are made or when the tension is changed.

The chain will not wear out. That's a fact. You may not believe this statement at first, but it is so near the truth that it cannot be classed otherwise. A chain equipped with our chain housing, permitting it to run in a bath of heavy oil and protecting it from dirt and grease will wear indefinitely.

Model H. Roadster, 30 H. P. $1150.

Model L. Touring Car, 35 H. P. $1600. Full Equipment as shown.

A test where a chain was run over 6,000 miles in oil showed practically no wear at all. It would almost pass for a new chain and the sprockets revealed the same condition.

Do you realize what this means? No bevel gears to bother; no waste of power due to worn gears; no universal joints to eat up power; no dirty chains; no dust or grit on them; no pebbles flying between the chain and sprocket; no noise; just a brand new perfect running, perfect fitting, power saving drive that you can forget all about as long as you have your car.

If the chain should break, what? This is the question which naturally comes to the mind of a person who has had experience with chain drives. It would injure the chain housing. But they don't break.

Owing to the easy condition imposed upon all of the driving parts of the Cartercar, and because of freedom from sudden shocks (one of the important advantages of friction transmission) a broken chain is practically unknown.

In time a chain running open and exposed to mud and grit and water will wear through and part, but protected and properly lubricated we insist that breakage is impossible.

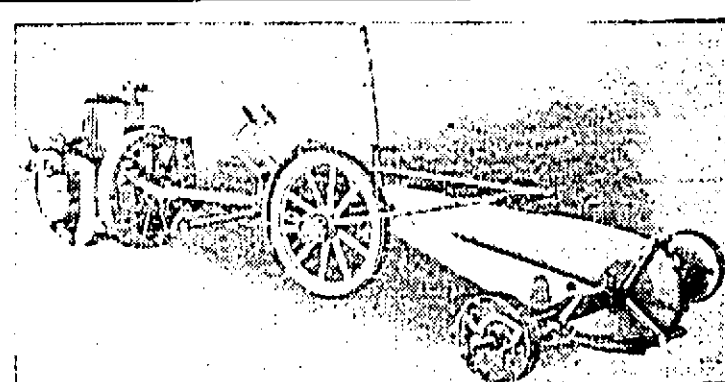

The strength of the chain is many times greater than any strain it is possible to subject it to.

If a chain should break and damage the chain housing in any manner as a result, we will furnish a new chain housing FREE of charge during the life of the car.

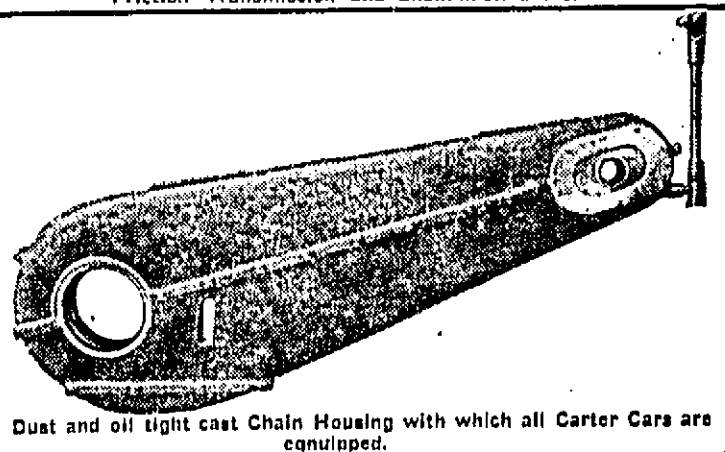

You can see that we know what it will do. The fact is, that with the chain running in oil, there isn't any possible chance of its ever breaking as there is no wear on it, but on the oil. A Cartercar chain is never broke except when badly worn; therefore without the wear there can be no broken chain.

For ordinary every day use, summer and winter, year in and year out the Cartercar is an exceedingly practical car. Because of its simplicity of construction its mechanism can be understood at once.

Every detail of the car is of the highest class. The material is the best, the workmanship could not be better, the finish, the upholstery, the whole car is strictly high grade from radiator to tail lamp. The lines are graceful and according to the very latest ideas. The finished car is handsome and is admired by the friends of the owner.

CARTERCAR TRUCKS

The Cartercar truck is designed particularly for carrying freight, just as the Cartercar touring car is designed for carrying passengers. Its frame is stout, and capable of supporting a much greater load than it would ever be called upon to carry. The springs are long and easy riding.

Both front and rear axles are of heavy tubular construction, with extra heavy walls. No gears or other moving parts are mounted on either axle, thus permitting the use of solid tires without detriment. Wheels are large and strong, giving easy riding qualities.

Cross shaft and jack shaft are very large, and made of the highest grade of steel. They run in bearings of tremendous carrying capacity. Sprockets are of large size, and chains are tested to a four hundred per cent overload.

The steering gear is of a new and special design; sensitive and positive. Steering knuckles and spindles are of large size. Wheels run on ball bearings of extra large size.

Every part of the car is easily accessible, and in case of necessary adjustment on the road, there is never any need of disturbing the load. All grease cups and parts which need attention frequently, are in easy reach outside the frame.

Particular attention has been paid to bodies; and here again is Cartercar quality noticeable. We are offering three styles of body. Each has large carrying capacity, and is very substantial in construction. Finish is of the same excellence that has always characterized Cartercar pleasure cars. A general idea of the style and appearance of our trucks can be gained from the accompanying cuts.

The transmission of the Cartercar is ideally adapted to commercial purposes. It is well known that a sliding gear transmission is not successful in a truck, owing to the skill required to operate it and to the likelihood of its being injured by careless handling. A planetary transmission has only two speeds, which are not enough.

The Cartercar friction transmission has an infinite number of speeds, a feature really essential in a delivery wagon. It cannot be injured by careless handling; and unless it suffers a collision or some similar accident, it cannot be put out of business on the road.

The efficiency of the Cartercar transmission is higher than that of any other known, and a greater percentage of power is delivered to the rear wheels. Power is always applied gently, and no matter how careless the operator may be, he cannot start the car with a jerk. Let one consider what this means in the case of a truck loaded with fragile goods on a steep hill. This flexibility of drive also protects every part of the car from excessive strain, thus reducing the maintenance cost to a minimum.

There is only one wearing part in the Cartercar—the fibre filler. This fibre filler runs upward of four thousand miles, and can then be easily replaced in a short time without dismounting the body or any part of the mechanism. Greasing and other necessary attention require only a few minutes daily, and all grease cups are readily accessible, so that there is little likelihood of the driver neglecting this important matter.

In every respect the Cartercar friction transmission is the ideal one for the purpose. Where other transmissions are weak, that of the Cartercar is strong, and its advantages are obvious.

The motor used in the Cartercar truck is of two cylinder opposed type. It is the same motor which achieved so wonderful records in the Cartercar of several years ago. With its close fitting pistons, long bearings, perfectly aligned crank shaft, and its simple and positive valve action, and refined in its construction to an extent never before or since reached by a two cylinder motor, the power plant of the present truck maintains the high standard set by its predecessors years ago.

This motor is lubricated by a positive mechanical ler, with an individual oil feed to each bearing, and once set, there is no possibility for this lubricator to fail so long as oil is present in the tank.

Ignition is by magnets, with auxiliary battery. Coil is carried on the dash.

Every part of the motor is easily accessible. In case of needed repairs to motor, or if it is desired to clean it after several seasons' running, the entire motor may be easily removed from the frame simply by removing the radiator, and taking out a few bolts.

We have thoroughly tested this car by running one for our own trucking purposes at the factory for over a year before putting it on the market, and we now offer it to the public with the assurance that it has been tried out and not found wanting.

Cartercar Trucks range in price from $1250 to $1350.
